A New Type of Membership

Many have told us they would like to be active members, but are not in a position to form a local chapter. To accommodate these folks we are now listing two classes of Active Members. Both classes have the same privileges.

Those members who have paid two dollars and now wish to become active in this new classification may do so by sending in an additional Three dollars.

We absolutely must have two thousand active members by January first, if the Federation is to adequately carry on its program.

You Must Be Just Like Me

Most of you are not because you have already paid your dues for the year, but a great many of you folks must be, because you have put off sending in your dues. Please don't put it off any more. I too am one of those putter-offers, but, believe it or not, I have now paid my dues to the Federation and can therefore urge you to do the same.

About two thousand of our members should pay their dues this month. If your membership card does not have 1957 on it your dues are due. Each of you who, according to our records, have not paid this year will either receive a letter from us by mail or will have a letter included in this issue of the Bulletin.

Whether your Health Federation succeeds or fails will depend very largely on how well you members keep your dues paid. We, who have the responsibility of the work of the Federation, are counting on you.

The Federation has made a fine record of things accomplished this past year. WE MUST KEEP GONG FORWARD. WE CAN MOVE ONLY AS FAST AS FUNDS ALLOW — AND AS FAR.

GRAVITY DAY will be held at New Boston, New Hampshire, August 17, 1957. Please save this date now. The complete program will be mailed to everyone on the mailing list of the Gravity Research Foundation, east of the Mississippi River in July. We will gladly send a copy to anyone else who asks for it.

If you're not afraid to face the music you may some day lead the band.—Quote

The Needs of Your Organization

The National Health Federation has during the past year demonstrated its great value. The very demonstration of that value has brought to the organization added burdens. Added burdens mean greater financial outlays.

1. The Federation must finance the necessary help to work with the California Legislative Interim Committee, which is to study the California Cancer situation. Also the necessary help to work with the Congressional Committee set up to investigate the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

2. The Federation incurred indebtedness during the fight on the Weinberger bill, which together with the money owed as of December last year mean the Federation must raise by Christmas a sum equal to $7,500 to retire this indebtedness. Last year a drive for funds was inaugurated to retire the then indebtedness. The drive netted approximately $1,200.

May we suggest that you start now putting aside money to give the Federation this Christmas or sooner toward retiring the indebtedness of the Federation.

During the past four months approximately $400.00 has been received toward the expense of the interim and Congressional Committee presentations.

3. The Federation must double its membership and it can do it if those who are interested will send out the literature. Thousands would join if they knew about the Federation.

Literature costs the Federation one cent for each pamphlet. Where a person can pay this sum it will be helpful, where they cannot the Federation will furnish the literature free.

4. The Federation needs a steady income apart from memberships to take care of needed promotional work and to establish a permanent legal division to the end there may be a full time attorney on the staff at all times. This attorney would be the one on whom the interim and Congressional committee work responsibility would rest. He would also be well acquainted with health problems and could advise and help members in regard to regulations and legal tangles in the health field.

5. One of our members realizing the value of the Federation work and the need now of funds to carry on has suggested the following plan. Said he, there are folks who can give something each month for a year or so, who cannot give much in a lump sum. The following pledge is as he worked it out. He says health freedom is worth fighting and working and paying for, so he has pledged One Dollar per month for the next 12 months.

If one thousand of our members would do as well it would insure the success of the Federations program. Please bear in mind that none of the officers including the President, Fred J. Hart, get one cent of money from the Federation as salary and to-date none of them, including the President, has even been paid expense money. You are therefore assured the money you pledge or give will go for the work of the organization.

A Good Idea

It has come to our attention that a doctor is mailing National Health Federation literature with this attached:

Note: "I believe this is a good organization to support, if we wish to have Health Freedom for ourselves and our children and the right to select the doctor of our choice. All State licensed doctors should be permitted to practice in tax supported hospitals, also to share in public donations for the purpose of research to help improve their methods of helping sick and suffering. No one group has the right to maintain a monopoly over life and death."

EDITOR'S: NOTE: This kind of cooperation is very much needed and we hope others, whether they be doctors or not will do likewise.

THE PLEDGE

Date File No.

I do pledge to the National Health Federation for the preservation of my freedom to choose whatever treatment I shall use for my body, to be obtained from the Doctor of my choice, the sum of,

..... $1.00 per month
..... $2.00 per month
..... $5.00 per month or
..... Dollars per month for a period of one year.

American Cancer Society

This issue will contain a great deal of information regarding American Cancer Society. In this connection we desire to point out the Federation is not opposed to the society, but takes issues with those activities of the society which are detrimental to the well being of the people.

It is the desire of the federation that its members shall know about these activities to the end they may have knowledge of how the money they donate to the society is used.

The writer of this editorial, in ignorance, thought the money he gave to the society each year was honestly spent in research to find the cause and cure of cancer.

The American Cancer Society's support (California Branch) of the Weinberger bill was an eye opener. We were indeed surprised to find the primary purpose of the society was education (propaganda) and advertising, with not more than 20 per cent of the funds being spent on research and an estimated 5 per cent being spent toward cost of caring for cancer victims. Thus 75 cents out of each dollar we gave was used for purposes other than those for which we thought we were giving it.

Further investigation convinced us that the activities of the society in connection with the Weinberger bill are a fair example of the bulk of the activities of the American Cancer Society. We therefore find that we have unwittingly been helping finance activities which we consider to be detrimental to those suffering from cancer.

The solution is simple, so far as we are concerned. No more gifts to the society or to community drives which include the society, unless and until it changes its objectives and dubious activities.

National Health Federation Hold Mass Meetings

In Cleveland the members of the Federation in cooperation with the Cleveland Better Health Bureau, under the leadership of Harold Edwards staged a mammoth meeting for the purpose of hearing Dr. Hoxsey explain his great work and give the truth regarding the accusations of the Medical Monopoly and its tool the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

So successful was this meeting the Federation staged three such mass meetings in Southern California this month.

On July 12th at Pasadena 1,900 people listened for two hours to the factual testimony of cured Cancer patients and 175 in the audience raised their hands to testify that they owed their lives to the Hoxsey Cancer treatments.

On July 13, at Garden Grove, over 1,300 attended and between sixty-five and seventy-five stood up to testify they owed their lives to the Hoxsey treatments.

On Sunday morning in Los Angeles the last of the three meetings was held at the Embassy Auditorium with over 900 present and with close to fifty standing to testify they owed their lives to the Hoxsey treatment. At these three meetings a representative of the Medical Association was supposed to appear. He had said he would if the committee could get clearance from the County Medical Society. The clearance was obtained, but the Doctor stated he could not appear in spite of the clearance.

The Food and Drug Administration was requested to have a man appear to debate the issue, but the Washington office advised that such would not be proper.

At each meeting Dr. Hoxsey made the following offer. He presented a $100,000 check to the audience and said he would deposit it in any bank chosen on the following conditions.

The Medical Society to bring 100 patients who had proven cancer. Each patient to be given duplicate numbers. One set of numbers to be placed in a box and each side draw a number at a time until each side had 50 numbers or cases.

The Medical Doctors were to treat their fifty with X-ray, Surgery and or Radium, etc., and he and his doctor would treat their fifty patients the Hoxsey way. At the end of six months the patients were to be examined and if he, Hoxsey, and his doctor had not cured two to the medic's one he would turn the check over to any charity the Medics would designate. It would seem to us that if the Hoxsey treatments are worthless the Medics would jump at this chance to prove it so, once and for all time. Hoxsey also announced there would be a Hoxsey Clinic in California—come what may.

It would seem that the Food and Drug Administration being so mindful of the cost of the Hoxsey treatments, would be rather ashamed of the fact that they force cancer victims to travel all the way to Dallas and back to get treated successfully for their ailments.

Hoxsey Treatments

In spite of rumors to the contrary the Dallas, Texas and Portage, Penn., cancer clinics are still open and curing patients with the Hoxsey treatments.

Because of a Texas law, which provides that only a Medical Doctor may own and operate a Clinic, Dr. Hoxsey has turned the operation of the Dallas Clinic over to Dr. Taylor. The same staff as before will be in charge.

Dr. Hoxsey will now have time to devote to his fight against the Medical Monopoly. The result:

1. In Washington a suit has been filed asking the court to force the Food and Drug Administration to take down the 46,000 posters now appearing in Post Offices. The grounds, such action on the part of Food and Drug Officials and the Post Office is an illegal act.

2. At Washington a suit has been filed requesting the court to restrain the Food and Drug Administration operatives from barging in upon Hoxsey cancer patients in their homes and using tactics similar in all respects to those used by the Gestapo; and

3. A demand has been filed with the court asking that the results of the No-member trial be obliterated and the injunction resulting therefrom be vacated. This action will be based on absolute evidence that one of the jurors was tampered with and violated her oath in a most atrocious manner.

Pray for the success of these actions. The people must Pray and Work and Give if any semblance of Health Freedom is to be maintained.

Organized Effort Pays

In Connecticut the optometrists tried to secure the passage of a bill which would outlaw eye training such as the Dr. Bates successful method.

Things looked dark, but two intrepid souls believed that this was still America and got busy and organized the people.

The efforts of these good people resulted in the Committee on Public Health reporting the bill unfavorably and thus killing it.

This is another example which proved, by and large; that the legislators of the State and Nation will do the will of the people and act justly and wisely when the facts are presented to them in an intelligent and earnest manner.

JULY AND AUGUST, 1957

America Wake Up

The last week in June marked the United States government's blackest day of infamy.

In that period two of the American Food Consumer's greatest benefactors were railroaded to prison after two of the most vicious mock trials ever engineered by the U. S. Food & Drug Administration, aptly called the Food & Drug bandits in informed circles.

Earl Irons, producer of Green Life—a natural vitamin undoes much of the harm done super market foods by Big Business — was sent to the Federal prison at Danbury (Conn.); to serve a year and a day.

Adolphus Hohensee, a lecturer and distributor of other natural vitamins, was sent to the Lewisburg, (Penn.,) hoosegow on a similar rap.

Neither of these two victims of Drug Trust greed and Administration Infamy violated any Federal or State laws. They were accused by the Food & Drug banditti of "false advertising," although false advertising is exclusively the province of the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC, which is not in the business of framing "enemies" of the Drug and Food Trusts and which has expert investigators to determine if false advertising is being used, made no complaint.

The whole persecution was carried on by the Food & Drug Administration, which is manned by swivel chair "doctors" who never practiced medicine a day in their lives.

The only witness against Irons said "a salesman had told him Green Life would cure arthritis." This witness was proven a perjurer by his own signed statement made when placing an order for Green Life.

"One expert" put in the chair to prejudice the defense, was a quack doctor from Harvard Medical School. He "testified" that one bowel movement in three months was all anyone needed to stay in good health.

The Hohensee "trial" was similar. In this case the judge went far afield and acted very unjudicial. In a stage whisper, so the jury could hear it, he expressed the opinion that Hohensee was a bad character — something reversible in any court in the land.

Both judges showed unjudicial bias and prejudice. In order to get a conviction they reserved all known rules of evidence. They refused to let witnesses who has used these products and could testify to facts so testify. Instead they admitted the sorriest kind of hearsay — the bilious opinions of medical graduates who never practiced medicine a day in their lives.

The scofflaws on the U. S. Supreme Court refused to even review either case, just a few days after they had reviewed the cases of nine Communist plotters and a Negro rapist, all convicted after fair trials. They turned all of these criminals loose on society, to go and do it again, on technicalities.

The end of this sorry business is not yet. It may end in the death or deaths of one or either. When Irons was taken to Danbury, his dinner that night consisted of two slices of white bread, some boiled macaroni and coffee. Not enough nourishment in this trash to keep a bird alive.

Hohensee refused to eat it. He went on a hunger strike and for three weeks has refused to eat this junk. As we go to press he is reported in the prison hospital being forcibly fed" with intravenous injections of glucose and saline.

The whole story of the Irons and Hohensee frame-ups lie in the greed of the Drug and Food trusts, and the dishonesty of some public officials. Natural vitamins keep people well, and well people don't buy drugs. The House of Rockefeller owns the drug, food, milk, serum, money, news and other trusts.

The House of Rockefeller owns the Eisenhower Administration. The whole sorry business combines to frame up and railroad to prison anyone who interferes with the profits of the Rockefeller trusts.

Congressman Burdick, the North Dakota "maverick" has introduced a resolution to investigate the use of poisonous food additives, permitted in food by the Food & Drug Administration, exposed in CAPSULE NEWS over the past year. Hearings are scheduled to start Monday before a sub-committee of the House Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee.

Already Big Business has moved in. According to an announcement only representatives of Big Business, which poisons the food you buy in the super markets to make it last longer and bring money profit to the food trust, and "representatives of the government" will be heard.

These representatives of the government are the faithless government officials in the Food & Drug Administration and the U. S. Public Health Service, who have permitting violations of the law when committed by the Food and Drug Trusts.—From Capsule News, July 13, 1957.

The National Health Council

By Scientific Health Protection League

407 So. Dearborn St.

Chicago 1, Illinois

Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is also Vice President of the National Health Council, 1790 Broadway, New York City. This is the Trojan Horse in the Health field which follows the pattern of the Medical Council of Soviet Russia (Medicine and Health in the Soviet Union by Sigerist.) The Council consists of 50 health charity organizations (Polio, Cancer, Heart, Birth Prevention, etc.) and "serves to weave together the many threads of the public health movement within the U. S. into a fabric of total health protection" National Health Council. 3/15/54.

In 1945 the National Health Council, financed by the Rockefeller Foundation, at a cost of $100,000 (J.A.M.A. 6/15/46) brought out the Gunn-Platt report. The report recommended complete reorganization of the Nation's 20,000 voluntary health agencies under a "strong central agency." Dr. D. E. Armstrong calls attention, according to an editorial in the Journal of the A.M.A. 6/15/45 to the assumption in the Gunn-Platt Report that Communization of the efforts and resources in our country is inevitable and that seemingly the world wide trend toward socialism must be followed here.

Maleck, from Communist Czechoslovakia, declares that the new socialist society must be founded on the pattern of the Viam Institute of Russia or the Rockefeller Institute of the United States (J.A.M.A. 10/1/49).

Dimirty Z. Manuilsky, before the Lenin School of Political Warfare in 1931 said: "The bourgeoisie will have to be put to sleep . . . The capitalistic countries, stupid and decadent, will rejoice to cooperate in their own destruction" Lenin said, "Get control of the Public Health Agencies and furnish the key to the arch of the Socialized State."

America's health is being jeopardized by the Red Octopus deeply rooted and well established in the National Health Council and in the Government Health Agencies. The President of the National Health Council is Leona Baumgartner, M.D., Head of the New York Board of Health, who has two Communist Front Citations. She was praised in the Communist Daily Worker on March 13, 1956 for her promotion of Fluoridation.

The members of the National Health Council do not include such medical bodies as the American Medical Association, the American College of Surgeons, the Assn. of American Physicians and Surgeons, or other reputable groups whose business is medicine. (The A.A.P.S. passed a resolution opposing all compulsory medication.)

The members are Charity Groups, playing upon the generosity of the American people, and pooling the collections, working jointly with the U. S. Public Health Service and other government agencies, whose influence and resources are available at taxpayers expense for any Soviet Style Medical Program they decide to launch.

Since funds and endorsements can be used interchangeably, they automatically have practically all the names of the groups which have played upon the sympathies of the public, and which people have come to accept as reputable. (TB Christmas Seal money is used to promote Fluoridation, which is permissible under their charter).

Flouridation was the first compulsory mass medication program started by this group. No research was done by any of the organizations who sponsored and endorsed the Fluoridation Experiment using animals. It was tried first on human Guinea pigs. It was promoted with false statistics and ballyhoo, with the cooperation of radio, TV, movies, magazines, and the experts at brainwashing propagandized for fluoridation, using Federal, State, and Local Tax money. The fluoridation fraud backfired, until now more communities have refused, rejected, or discarded it than are using it. Most Americans who have been subjected to the treatment did so without their consent, and usually without their knowledge. This is not the American way.

It must be pointed out that the chief promoters of fluoridation are on the public payroll, or are members of the National Health Council. This group stressed at their March, 1955 convention that all agencies should make the facts available on this subject. Using group dynamics (a communist tool) they have captured the heads of PTA, PC's and other such national organization which have strong leadership and captive members (only accepted ideas are permitted to be discussed thus avoiding free thinking.) Thus we have become a nation of conformists, the rugged individual type which founded this free nation is the exception rather than the rule.

The American Medical Association which endorsed fluoridation "on the information available at the time" did so with a warning clause to avoid other sources of fluorine because of toxic effects, and did so in principle only. That body is now reevaluating fluoridation, and at the same convention in Seattle, the President Dr. Dwight Murray protested government interference in medicine.

The Salk Program Was Launched in the Same Way, with Fear and Ballyhoo

Since Basil O'Connor is one of the Chiefs in the National Health Council, this program is receiving the same cooperation, with more propaganda, since this is supposed to be a voluntary procedure at this time. Indiana is now trying to make it compulsory, which will be the next step, if they fail to peddle the oversupply which the government has ordered, "ignoring the advice of private physicians," Ed. 8/6/55. J.A.M.A.

Polio, like Muscular Dystrophy, is a rare disease. Death rate for Polio in 1950 was 1.1 per 100,000. Public attacks were as low as 5 per 100,000 (Public Health Survey 1950.) According to a Chicago Health Survey on Polio during the past 10 years indicates that nearly 98 per cent of polio is a mild, wide-spread disease of young children that leaves no residual symptoms. (J.A.M.A. 10/15/49).

Referring to polio prevention through mass inoculations, Dr. F. E. Leader, Dir. of the Michigan Department of Disease control, states that "99 per cent of the population has developed immunity before they are 30" (Grand Rapids Herald 10/6/53).

According to Dr. Scheele, former Surgeon General of the United States Health Department about 1 per cent or less of polio cases does the virus attack the spinal cord or brain to cause paralysis or muscle weakness (C. T. 6/8/55).

Only $33,803 was given to Mt. Sinai Hospital in 1956 in New York for research (J.A.M.A. 5/29/49).

Adolphus Hohensee in Jail

Adolphus Hohensee in jail, what for? For selling wheat and failing to state on the label how it was to be used to cure certain diseases enumerated below. Had he stated the above on the label he would have been sent to jail anyway. Note that wheat has now become a drug, not by law but by edict of the Food and Drug Administration. It's time, America, to wake up. You must have a voice in Health Matters. You can have and it will be heard and heeded if you so will.

The following is the charge on which he was convicted:

That El Rancho Adolphus Products, Inc., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; Scientific Living, Inc., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and Adolphus Hohensee, an individual, the defendants herein, did, within the Middle District of Pennsylvania, within the period from on or about July 22, 1952, to on or about August 5, 1952, in violation of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, unlawfully cause to be introduced and delivered for introduction into interstate commerce at Scranton, Pennsylvania, for delivery to Leeds Health House at Denver, Colorado, a number of bags containing a drug:

That displayed upon said bags was certain labeling which consisted of the following printed and graphic matter:

EL RANCHO
BRAND
WHOLE WHEAT
10 lbs. NET WEIGHT
Distributed by
EL RANCHO ADOLPHUS
PRODUCTS, INC.
SCRANTON, PA.

That said drug, when caused to be introduced and delivered for introduction into interstate commerce as aforesaid was misbranded within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. 352 (f) (1) in that its labeling failed to bear adequate directions for use in that the labeling of said drug failed to state the purposes, conditions and diseases for which said drug was intended, to wit, for preventing idiocy, for the treatment of cancers and ulcers, for helping to cure worms, fits, convulsions and epilepsy and for preventing mental instability, bad temper, heart disease, eye diseases and sex crimes.

The Grand Jury further charges:

That on or about March 8, 1948, the said Adolphus Hohensee, one of the defendants herein, was convicted in the United States District Court for the District of Arizona of violation of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act

A CANCER VICTIM SPEAKS

By DAVID M. KASSON

Political, charitable, business and professional organizations are capable of being a force for good or evil. Organizations, which solicit money from the people, by direct appeal or taxes, are subject to corruption, for this money becomes no one's money and its expenditure is not easily subject to scrutiny by contributors.

These organizations eventually may be controlled, not by their founders, who are usually idealistic citizens of reputation and good intent, but by people placed in their positions by entrenched business interests for selfish purposes.

These organizations, through advertising methods and by securing names of outstanding citizens in each community as sponsors, surround themselves with an aura of sanctity and omnipotence so their word becomes final in fields in which they specialize. They cause untold damage to the cause which may mean life or death to the people who support them.

The local sponsors are proud to lend their names to a good cause, though these sponsors usually do not have direct knowledge of how the organization operates. If they did, they would withdraw in short order.

The organizations are so constituted that members are given little opportunity to make their voices heard or votes felt. Most people feel that corruption in charitable organizations is unthinkable.

I believe, after a careful study, that the policies of the American Cancer Society are open to question.

My interest in this situation began nine months ago in August, 1956. At that time I was operated on for cancer of the colon. My condition was pronounced hopeless as the cancer was widely spread and could not be removed. I was given a matter of weeks to live.

Then I was treated with an anti-cancer agent known as "Krebiozen." I am still alive, though I realize I am standing on the banks of the Styx rattling the dice with a most uncertain future.

However, I feel better than at any time during the last five years; the improvement with Krebiozen treatment has been continuous and sustained. Almost needless to say, this is not the normal course of hopeless cancer.

Having been an independent manufacturer in scientific fields for almost forty years, I was asked to serve as president of "The Committee for Independent Cancer Research," Miss Gloria Swanson is its Chairman.

I agreed to serve in an advisory capacity, as the work could be handled from my home where I am confined. My only interest, in view of my condition, is to see that the public's interest is not interfered with for selfish and careless reasons.

After studying the situation, I am appalled by the alleged methods used by the American Cancer Society in channeling donated funds to certain select organizations, apparently those controlled or beneficially used by the drug monopolies, and denying them to experience, independent research scientists with the highest scholastic and scientific backgrounds.

Not only do they deny them funds, but they refuse to make provision through which an independent research scientist can secure a controlled test for his claims, even though in some instances, these independents state they can show a history of six years of experimentation.

It is of interest to note that of 687 patients pronounced hopeless by their physicians and surgeons and given a few weeks to live who were then treated with Krebiozen, as covered in a careful report by Dr. Ivy and Dr. Durovic over a period of 6 years, the treatment was effective in 70 per cent of the cases.

Forty After 5 Years

Forty of these patients are still living and cancer-free after 5 years. The balance lived from a matter of weeks up to 5 years. With these living witnesses available, and all their case histories, with X-rays, biopsies and diagnoses available to the AMA, American Cancer Society and other interested groups, would it not appear that a strange situation exists?

To further show the apparent conspiracy existing between these medical societies and the commercial interests motivating their actions, I cite the case of Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Ph.D., M.D., world famed scientist, one of the world's leading researchers in cancer, former vice-president of the University of Illinois and of its Chicago Colleges of the Health Professions, which included the University's Medical School.

During World War II he was chosen by the United States Government to set up the vast naval medical research institute at Bethesda, Maryland. After the war he was chosen by the American Medical Association's Board of trustees to represent the allied governments in the trials of German medical men accused of atrocities.

In the book "K-Krebiozen — Key to Cancer?" written by Herbert Bailey, the activities of the AMA are brought into focus. As described in this book, what happened is beyond the belief of the average layman and practicing physician.

It started when Dr. Ivy sponsored Dr. Stevan Durovic and his treatment for cancer, known as "Krebiozen," about the year 1950. Dr. Durovic had developed the substance over a period of fifteen years before he brought it to the United States.

Dr. Durovic studied at the University of Belgrade. He later attended the famed Institute of the University of Paris. In 1933 he held a research desk at the Pasteur Institute, specializing in the study of molds. He became professor of medicine at the University of Belgrade where he established a reputation of the highest order among medical men of Europe. He served as a Captain in the Royal Army medical corp of Yugoslavia during World War II. He was captured by the Italians.

His brother Marco and he were unable to return to Yugoslavia because the Communists had taken over. Marco lost his plant, one of the largest munitions producers in Europe. The two Durovics migrated to Argentina where their anti-cancer agent was eventually developed.

After favorable results on animals, Dr. Durovic came to the United States where he interested Dr. Ivy in testing the substance on human beings. Dr. Ivy, whom he knew through his work, was the only scientist he cared to place his confidence in. The effect of the treatment on cancer patients was so startling that Dr. Ivy became extremely interested.

Seventy Per Cent Responded

The two worked together for years and, during this time, the substance was proved significantly effective in the treatment of cancer. In about 70 per cent of the cases treated, the patients responded and lived from a few weeks to a period of over five years. This is truly remarkable for these patients chosen for experiment had been pronounced hopeless by their attending physicians. Even today, only those treated and pronounced hopeless by their attending physicians are treated with Krebiozen.

Two hundred doctors and clinics stated the treatment to be effective. Wouldn't you think that the American Medical Association and the American Cancer Society would have been wildly enthusiastic about such a situation?

They weren't.

* Bailey's book tells how Dr. J. J. Moore, the Treasurer of the American Medical Association, tried to pressure the Durovics into giving certain business acquaintances of his the distribution rights for the product. Dr. Ivy was pressured to secure Dr. Durovic's compliance. They refused.

Then began a campaign of defamation of these two scientists which rocked the medical world. Dr. Durovic was labeled a quack, Dr. Ivy a misguided publicity seeker. Medical men made favorable statements concerning their tests of the product and then changed, falsified or qualified their previous statements. Research scientists of the highest order buckled under.

Fake reports with all the sins of omission committed were hastily issued. Based on these reports, American doctors were discouraged from administering the treatment. Several self-seeking associates of Dr. Ivy in the University of Illinois tried to place Dr. Ivy in a position where he would be forced to resign. The Chicago Medical Society hierarchy suspended him for three months, which is about as humiliating a position as a medical man can be placed in.

Nothing in the way of humiliation and degradation was spared these two gentlemen. The numbing shock experienced by two reputable, distinguished scientists of world renown, used to the objective atmosphere of a research laboratory, can be imagined. However, they remembered Semmelweis, Reed, Lister, Pasteur, Grubbe and other giants who faced similar problems and succeeded.

Ivy and Durovic held their ground.

If it were not for men like these, the medical fraternity would still be cutting people with unsterile instruments, bleeding them to death and prescribing concoctions of bat's wings by the light of the moon.

The net result of this action was that Dr. Stoddard, the President of the University of Illinois, resigned, among many others. Ivy remained as head of the Clinical Science Department but lost his office of vice-president.

The AMA is an unbelievable power, its tentacles reaching into the smallest towns of America. Almost every reputable physician belongs. Elections of top national officers is one of those contrived political maneuvers where the medical practitioner, for whom I have the greatest respect and who, I believe, is not overpaid, has a vote which, through the usual rigged system of delegations, means exactly nothing in so far as his power to influence the organization is concerned.

With millions of dollars at this hierarchy's command, it has powerful state and national lobbies. In the case of the national government, it is acknowledged the second most powerful lobby. Few politicians can be blamed if they do not challenge it head-on.

An Exception

The late Senator Tobey was an exception. After his son was afflicted with cancer and pronounced hopeless by attending physicians, Tobey, Jr., was cured by Dr. Robert Lincoln of Medford, Mass. (Dr. Lincoln later founded the Foundation which bears his name.) Senator Tobey investigated the situation regarding cancer and found it shocking. His son is still living and is, by the way, cancer-free.

As Chairman of the Committee of Interstate Commerce, Senator Tobey secured the loan of the services of one of the country's ace investigators, Benedict F. Fitzgerald, who was working at the time for the Department of Justice. Fitzgerald investigated the Krebiozen matter thoroughly. Unfortunately, Senator Tobey died. His last request was to a certain senator asking him to carry on the investigation because of its life-and-death nature to the American people.

Fitzgerald's report was suppressed. (Editor's Note: It was first published in The Independent.) He couldn't get an audience with the senator. The matter was referred to some obscure sub-committee and died.

Fitzgerald was released by the committee and fired by the Department of Justice.

Columnist Drew Pearson grew suspicious of the prompt quashing of the investigation and suppression of Fitzgerald's report. He secured the report and published parts of it in several columns.

Pearson cited two major points. He said, 1. That the AMA had been downright dishonest." 2. The fight against Krebiozen is the weirdest conglomeration of intrigue, selfish motives, jealousy and conspiracy I have ever seen. Dr. Ivy is one of the most competent and unbiased experts I have ever come in contact with."

Concerning the AMA's responsibility in the Ivy-Durovic matter, Fitzgerald stated, The alleged machinations of Dr. J. J. Moore, Treasurer of the AMA, could involve the AMA in an interstate conspiracy of alarming proportions."

This entire situation has frightening implications. If you will study the problem, it becomes apparent that the American Cancer Society, the AMA and the entrenched drug monopolies, as a conspiracy with millions of dollars at their disposal, could influence any legislation covering the field. If such a conspiracy exists, it would not be difficult for the drug monopoly to secure the top positions in all medical charities and the AMA for their minions. These organization fronts can dictate the appointments of officials in the government, local, state and national, including the armed forces.

The following is based on a paper issued by the eminent research scientist, Henry K. Watchtel, M.D., former Associate Professor of Physiology and Director of Cancer Research at Fordham University, entitled, "The Disappointing State of the Cancer Problem."

Independent research scientists feel that all approaches to the problem of curing cancer have been proven failures to date. Most of the independent scientists feel that the cure of cancer will be achieved, not by the removal or destruction of cancer cells by X-ray or surgery, but by reversing the pathological changes in the body metabolism which are responsible for cancer.

The unbiased observer will assume that, having discovered a number of tracks to success in cancer treatment, medicine will follow them as fast as possible. This appears not to be true. Official medicine seems to ignore this progress.

But it does even worse. Powerful propaganda placed in newspapers, radio and television, misrepresent and disparage the work of scientists who develop new methods of treatment. The public is cautioned not to trust such "quacks."

In this way hopeless cancer patients appear not only to be prevented from getting any help by "non-accepted" methods, but simultaneously any improvement of cancer therapy appears to be practically impossible — except by "approved" scientists.

This propaganda is paid for with the public's money. During the last decade huge sums of public money have been given to the fight against cancer. Every year about $50,000,000 is given by the public to three institutions: The American Cancer Society, The Damon Runyon Fund, and the Federal National Institute of Cancer. Part is public contributions — part from U. S. taxes.

Of these millions not even 5 per cent is spent for practical help to patients suffering from cancer. About 20 per cent is given for research. The remainder goes for "educational" and "advisory" purposes, after a sizable chunk is put away for the administration.

Of the money spent on research, nothing is given for projects connected with a new approach to cancer.

These charities recommended even fancy research projects for support as long as their authors keep their ideas inside the "accepted" formulas. But they reject any unorthodox project, from which most medical advances of history have come.

Thus, there exists a kind of conspiracy directed against any real progress in cancer. That it was possible to create such conspiracy, one understands after becoming acquainted with the history of the American Cancer Society.

The American Cancer Society was organized in 1913 by a group of public-spirited physicians and laymen. In 1937 the Society launched its first annual drive to obtain funds from the public. It was an honest endeavor, and the activities of the Society during this period can be commended.

In 1945 the Society was reorganized. A group of influential businessmen joined the Board of Directors, and a program of research was added to complement education and service to the cancer patient.

The new Board of Directors introduced two features into the activities of the Society: Get more money from the public and have an exclusively layman's society distribute funds for research.

Bobst Bobs Up

First, let us consider who were the "influential businessmen" who, in 1945, joined the Board of Directors. Among the directors "elected" to the new Board of the American Cancer Society were: Mr. Elmer H. Bobst (of William H. Warner Co.) who became Chairman of the Board, and Mr. James S. Adams (of Lazard Freres et. Co., New York) who became the Treasurer.

During the following ten years the team Adams and Bobst has influenced decisively the fate of cancer research in America. During this time, Bobst, acted as the owner of the various Warner-enterprises (mostly dealing in pharmaceuticals) and Adams acted as the banker of the Warner-enterprises. (Warner-enterprises have recently been taken over by Lazard Freres et. Co.)

There is a record of Bobst's activities prior to his election as the chairman of the American Cancer Society. In the book of Mr. Wendel Berge, Assistant Attorney General of the U. S.: "Carltons, Challenge to a Free World," (Public Affairs Press, Washington, D. C.) Elmer H. Bobst is mentioned among those who were prosecuted by the Department of Justice for violation of the anti-trust laws.

On December 17, 1941, Bobst was found guilty by the Court, and fined $6,000.

The violations of the law of which Bobst was found guilty, included "the hostility of cartel members toward a new product which endangers their control of the market . . . In the field of synthetic hormones the cartel control has been such as to be detrimental to our national interest" (p. 81).

Among the methods used by the cartels, Mr. Berge quotes: "It has attempted to suppress the publication of scientific research data which were at variance with its monopoly interest. (p. 84). Research in U. S. has been seriously affected by restrictions imposed by foreign cartel members" (p. 58).

Methods to increase money collected from the public met with success. In 1938 the drive brought in $133,487; in 1950 this rose to $13,916,396 and in 1955 to $24,427,102.

The Scare Campaign

When a cancer drive for contributions is put on, a scare and accomplishment campaign in the public press is put into effect. Scare slogans are used such as, "One in six will die of cancer," "Seven Danger Signals," "Woman has to learn to examine her breasts at regular monthly intervals," "Rapid progress is being made," "Startling discovery," "Knocking a hole in the tumor," "Crack attack on cancer." The scare publicity whips the public to a state of mass hysteria.

In reality, about one in 500 dies each year of cancer and there have been no significant advances made by the organization-controlled researchers of any importance.

Concerning the distribution of the money to the right scientists, wasting it on sterile projects, or its use for corruption, the public has no chance to advise or to decide.

The monopolizing of cancer research started immediately after the new Board was elected to the American Cancer Society. In time, it was perfected. The public accepted the new idea, not realizing that research money in the hands of laymen acting without real control, would easily be used by unscrupulous people to corrupt science.

In 1947 a new institution called The "The Damon Runyon Memorial Fund for Cancer Research" was created. The Fund was successful. As of July 1954, $7,689,218 has been collected from the public.

The main promoter of this Fund was radio-commentator Walter Winchell. Walter Winchell was on radio time paid for by Warner Co. The funds of the Damon Runyon Memorial were and are administered by the American Cancer Society. Large funds were also obtained from the U. S. Atomic Commission.

There was an intertwining of institutions such as the Jane Coffin Childs fund, the Babe Ruth foundation and others. Through this coordination the American Cancer Society was in complete control of public money spent for cancer research.

Close relationship was created between the Society and the National Cancer Institute of the U. S. Public Health Service to which the Congress every year votes many millions of dollars for cancer research.

Dr. John R. Heller, Director of the Institute, became a member of the Board of the American Cancer Society, and James S. Adams of the American Cancer Society became a member of the National Advisory Council of the Institute.

It was now possible to monopolize this money for projects agreeable to the combine, and to deny it to outsiders.

In spite of the financial domination of Adams-Bobst, who had every year about $50,000,000 to distribute, there are independent scientists who did not cooperate. A way was devised to annihilate them. The Society announced a new service, described by them as follows: This service assumes a "watch-dog" responsibility concerning unscrupulous attempts to exploit the universal suffering of cancer in appeals for funds or in respect to "cures" and unproved methods of treatment.

They now stood with the angels, wrapped in virtue.

Thus a layman's society imposes a censorship, self-appointed, upon an important branch of science, promoting itself to a position of scientific authority. When this "service" is consulted, it "warns" people not to give money for projects to which the Society is hostile, or to try any treatment not approved by the Society.

$1,500,000 in Advertising

In consequence, cancer patients pronounced hopeless, are deprived of the opportunity of getting relief from newly discovered treatments, and, in addition, the ban of new procedures makes futile the endeavors by independents to develop a new successful method.

It is surprising that these activities of the American Cancer Society, which are detrimental to the public health, are tolerated and even often supported by the American Medical Association. In late years, this Association has changed basically.

While before, the Association acted as the promoter of public health and clinical medicine, now it behaves like a union of medical practitioners which exclusively promotes the welfare of its members without regard for the public interest. The Journal of the AMA, which is regarded as the mouthpiece of medical progress, publishes many articles in support of the American Cancer Society without careful investigation of their correctness.

The American Cancer Society spends $1,500,000 in advertising. It is obvious that such a sum must bring results, publicity-wise. On the other hand, anything critical of the Society is not accepted for publication. Money talks.

The American Cancer Society is conscious of the danger of losing public support as it becomes clear that nothing of value is developed. Therefore, every year before the drive for money begins, the Society inspires reports of "tremendous" achievements in the press. Statistics are quoted showing cancer cures increasing.

These statistics are fortified by statements issued by Federal Government Agencies.

As a recent example, we quote the information wired on March 20, 1956, to newspapers: "Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, the Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service, stated the rate of cure in cancer cases increased in the past ten years from 15 per cent to more than 50 per cent. "These figures are unsupported. Statistics of the last ten years would indicate this claim to be absurd.

Scheele Joins the Pack

After Scheele lost his position of Surgeon General, he became the President of Warner-Lombert Pharmaceutical Company, a corporation controlled by Adams-Bobst.

No action by the government was taken on the situation. Could the fact that Bobst was important in the Republican Party where he kept the purse as its Treasurer have had any influence? Bobst also made contacts with important people in the Democratic party.

As a consequence, the problem of cancer is at an impasse, and one of the main stumbling blocks of progress appears to be the activities of the American Cancer Society and its affiliates.

Cancer research requires money. The expense for chemicals, experimental animals, and for salaries of indispensable assistants and technicians, amounts to considerable sums which only rarely can be afforded by the research-conducting scientist. The independent researcher must have public support. Many prominent people, being convinced that they help fight cancer, have made sacrifices in time, work and money to assist the American Cancer Society.

When an independent scientist applies to the American Cancer Society, or associated organizations, for funds, regardless of his background or reputation, he is often put through an agonizing experience. Needless to say, he does not get any help.

Funds collected by these charity appeals, go for research and development to their friends. When a new, important development is announced, the drug monopoly can, in this way, receive the benefit of the public money in the form of profits received from products of their manufacture sold to the public.

Monopoly

I believe in capitalism and democracy. I believe in the profit motive. I am bitterly opposed to Communism. I am also bitterly opposed, and always have been, to monopoly. If a medical conspiracy exists, it would be particularly damnable as it would involve the matter of life and death.

Both Communism and monopoly are essentially opposed to capitalism. Both eventually deprive free men of their freedom. They are both un-American. Monopoly is indicated in this situation. If a conspiracy exists, thousands of citizens have been deprived of their right to life and, if the evil is not corrected, millions more will be deprived of their lives in the future.

If you wish to see the conspiracy at work at state level, the connection of the American Cancer Society and the medical interests with the Weinberger Bill just passed by the assembly of California State Legislature would be of interest.

If this bill is passed by the whole legislature and signed by the Governor of California, it will make it impossible for independent medical research scientists to carry on their work. That will mean the end of the future Pasteurs and the slow decay of medical progress. Let us hope that far-sighted Californians will organize to stop this legislative horror in time. (They did.)

We have good reason to believe that the rank and file of these medical organizations terrorized by the group are aware of the situation and would like to see a fundamental reorganization and housecleaning. If subpoenaed by the Senate Committee investigating rackets. I am sure they would give evidence which would blast conspirator hierarchies out of these organizations in short order.

Against Contributions

I, therefore, request my fellow citizens not to contribute to the American Cancer Society as at present constituted.

I do not, by any means, wish the organization, or its associate organizations, to disappear. I believe they could all be a power for good — a lot of their work at present is good — if the offenders were eliminated and a thorough reorganization took place with a reappraisal of present policies.

Certainly Dr. J. J. Moore's usefulness as Treasurer of the American Medical Association is at an end. In my personal opinion, all the other officers and directors of the organization should resign in as much as they have not taken action during all the years this matter has been known.

Those placed in positions of trust, where public money is solicited, should be reputable, non-business, non-political, objective people, and above all, medical research scientists of reputation who are not subject to pressure from monopoly or other selfish interests. In this way the Pasteurs of the world will be given their chance.

As a constructive suggestion, I urge the formation of a city, town or county Citizens' Watch-Dog Committee in all communities of America to investigate and pass on all appeals for contributions. This committee should pass not only on cancer requests, but all requests for medical funds. Probably this will improve the organization of all groups which solicit the public.

Charities approved by this committee should be watched carefully through yearly check-ups to ascertain that corrupting influences have not perverted the original objectives of such charities. In the case of such charities as the American Cancer Society, a request for an itemized list of the grants given and the amounts involved should be made. If precise information is not made available to such committees, the charity should not be approved.

Charities appearing before such a committee should be challenged by any organization or individual who felt it was not justified in receiving the committee's approval. Both sides could be represented at a public meeting and the people could decide.

I believe a forward move, to serve both the public good as well as the scientists involved, would be to arrange a meeting of all scientists engaged in cancer research, regardless of the nature of their individual projects. There matters pertaining to cancer research could be approached objectively and perhaps a formula for solving the controversy covered in this paper developed. The Independent Committee for Cancer Research would be glad to arrange such a meeting or I would do it personally, as a public service. I would appreciate hearing from interested scientists.

As a further suggestion, I request that you write your Congressman to investigate the situation, and you might also ask the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C., why, with the information they have on the situation, do they not take action?

However, in all fairness, it should be understood that politicians cannot act too far ahead of public opinion, so unless you are willing to take the time to write everyone you know in Washington and also your State Legislature, you are probably deserving of what you get. Those interested in working with me on this program may write to me by addressing their mail to: David M. Kasson, Ellery Lane, Westport, Connecticut.

Hohensee in Jail

(Docket of No. C-7704 Phx), which conviction had become final before the violation hereinbefore alleged was committed.

By the time you read this item Hohensee will have been in jail over 50 days. Whether or not he will be dead is a moot question. He has refused to eat since the day he entered the jail. He is being fed through the veins. The way things are going in America, it could well be he will be dead by the time you read this letter and that not because he refuses to eat. Have you heard of anything in Russia that surpasses this incident? It is our own fault. Too long we have taken liberty in health for granted. Too long we have trusted those who profit from our illnesses.

Conceit is God's gift to little men.—

Ike's Doctor Declares U. S. Health Worst

The present "epidemic" of coronary thrombosis and atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) has made the United States "the most unhealthy country in the world," the physician who attended President in his coronary attack said here Saturday.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, well-known in his own profession long before his presidential patient made him famous, spoke at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Heart Association at the Veterans Administration Center.

Three Hundred Hear Talk

To an audience of about 300, he outlined the type of person most likely to fall victim to coronary thrombosis (the blocking by a blood clot of one of the arteries carrying the blood supply of the heart muscle).

The typical candidate, Dr. White said, is young, male (in one study men victims outnumbered women 24 to one), and of a broad and muscular build.

"The lean and skinny man like me is pretty safe," said Dr. White. "In the 200 cases of the study we didn't find a single one."

He said that, although the cause is not known of coronary thrombosis and the atherosclerosis which is its fore-runner, the best advice the medical profession can offer a potential victim is to avoid any gain in weight after the age of 23, and to keep vigorous exercise through life.

Abuse Christmas Seal Money

It may surprise many contributors to know it, but their Christmas Seal dollar is quite likely to end up helping to finance a fluoridation campaign instead of fighting T-B.

In a recent fluoridation fight in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, the local branch of the National Tuberculosis Association was the leading spirit in the unsuccessful attempt to put fluorides into the local water supply.

When one of the citizens returned his Christmas Seals and sent a letter of explanation to the national association, he was told that the local unit was clearly within its rights, that it is within the permissive activities of a T-B association to promote and support such activities.
